From the Author, Amy Marquez

I am in a new role as Library Innovation Strategist providing support for 42 campus librarians in our district. I am always looking for innovative ways to promote libraries, boost engagement, provide social emotional wellness support and reach all our learners. I plan to attend sessions focused on engaging patrons with innovative programming ideas like makerspaces, social media and hands-on activities.

When reviewing sessions, I focused on what's new and trending, health and wellness for educators and students, and a variety of tools to improve my practice. I'm excited to hear from leaders in the industry such as Becky Calzada, Tom Murray, Shannon Miller and many others I look to for inspiration.
